Luci^{di} Fiemme

Nature is shining by definition.
It's the light of life, of what is good and beautiful of authenticity and genuineness.
The floors of this series are flooded by this light,
because in their grains flows the life of wood and the cleverness of men, the beauty of nature and the loving kindness of the artisans of Fiemme.

The beauty of nature, illuminated by man's know-how,
shapes tradition into modern life.
That's how we enlight Luci di Fiemme.

Luci di Fiemme

Where Nature lights up.

Nature is the same, but it wears a new, unique and inimitable bright dress when improved with Thermowood thermal treatment: the wood of the upper layer is exposed to high temperatures that reduce humidity and caramelize the sugars of the various essences by darkening and hardening the whole thickness of the board. Wood becomes more resistant against swellings, maintains its steady dimensions and takes on nuances of extraordinarily refined beauty – warm and intense – that vary from the deep tones of the wet ground to honey-caramelised glares. Indeed, these sought-after colours are natural and obtained without using pigments nor toxic substances and, especially in the essences exposed to a medium glazing process, there may be evident shading among the boards which may fade over the years. To obtain the coldest Luci, after the glazing some essences are exposed to a light natural bleaching. Moreover, all Luci are treated with the exclusive 100% biocompatible FIEMME 3000 Bio Plus: it nourishes the wood in depth, protects it and keeps the marvellous drawings that nature has traced on every plank without obstructing its pores. The combination of Bio Plus and Thermowood treatments gives Luci di Fiemme an unique, beautiful and resistant character. These floors are particularly indicated also for damp locations or exposed to a most frequented foot traffic - like kitchens, bathrooms, showrooms and offices – and where the heating floor is installed. A light bevelling on the edges decorates FIEMME 3000 three-crossed-layer boards of this series. Luci di Fiemme are natural essences that, illuminated by years of research in the name of biocompatibility, feel like being new woods. For this reason, their names are fantastic and evocative neologisms about the natural world we wish around us, where man has only one duty: highlight and protect the beauty and health of this world.

STRUCTURE'S TECHNICAL BUILDING

Wood is a living material. Because of its nature, it is subject to changes due to external factors like sunlight, temperature, humidity and daily wear and tear. Changes of tone are normal and therefore the samples provided are for indicative purposes only, as the pictures shown in this catalogue. Notice also that the representation of colours and tones is limited by the photographic and printing processes.

LAGONERO

Essence

THERMOWOOD OAK
knot-free, knotty

A lake of dark and thick chocolate, where the depth of darkness, slightly touched by light, reveals warm and vibrant dark-reddish glares.

knot-free, knotty

The clear oak stands out with the wet red ground's colours. It's soft and variegated like a board of flowing candy, where blades of light fire up and brownish flaming effect patterns move smoothly.

THERMOWOOD OAK
knot-free, knotty

The oak is melted in a quiet sea of honey and flowers, crossed by languid waves of light that let go amber glares and bright golden filaments.

THERMOWOOD OLIVE ASH
unique

A voluptuous flowing of red-hot lava where red, shattered by never-ending shades of pomegranate colour, bordeaux and carmine, comes to surface from black and through ashwood's determined waves.

unique

Fire's irrepressible changeability runs in the veins of this ashwood in a shining chase of orange rays where fire up sudden copper brilliances and bronze flashes.

Acacia wood becomes dark, then milk chocolate in a vivid alternation of darkness and light that sets free bordeaux glares and sudden orange thunderbolts.

knot-free, knotty

A feeble bleaching reveals the nature of the rock, a precious meeting between wood's glow and rock's cold and shimmering grey fades, crossed by clearer and slightly rosy variegations.

THERMOWOOD OAK
knot-free, knotty

A placid stream of water that flows under the snow: this is the clear oak, crystallized in the cold, where the cosy glow comes from the thick twine of dove-grey and hazel nuances broken into thin vibrations of grey and pink.

knot-free, knotty

The bleaching, a faint puff of rosy silk, tames the baked oak's bright brown shades and melts them in domesticated hazel, creamy and delicate fades, like the light cipria.

unique

Ashwood's nature, darkened by the treatment and frozen by a very light white coat, is like the water at the mercy of cold that stretches out forming shining icicles while running on frozen rocks.

In this ashwood, the bleaching – like a very light veil of cipria laid on woods, darkened by the sun and smoothed by the winds – reveals soft and chromatic passages from dove-grey, hazel and pastel pink colours.

The compact acacia's fiber – hardened by the treatment, then bleached – alternates dark and burnt tones with delicate rosy blades. The fiber is rough and dark but, at the same time, quiet and cosy like a mountain hut surrounded by the frost that opens the door to the pleasant glow of a fireplace.
